ACKNOWLEDGMENT

First of all I would like to thank Allah SWT for blessing, giving His guidance, love, health and capability to the researcher to accomplish this thesis. This thesis is intended to fulfill the requirement for achieving the degree of Sarjana in Faculty Humanities of Dian Nuswantoro University in Semarang.

The writing of this thesis would not have been completed without some contributions and supports from many people. I also want to express my sincere thanks to:

1. Mr. Achmad Basari, S.S., M.Pd. as the Dean of Faculty of Humanities of Dian Nuswantoro University, who gave permission to me to conduct this study.
2. Mr. Sarif Syamsu Rizal, M.Hum as the Head of English Department of Strata 1 program, who gave me permission to conduct this thesis.
3. Mrs. Rahmanti Asmarani, M.Hum as thesis coordinator.
4. Mrs. Sri Mulatsih, M.Pd. as my advisor who gave me guidance, corrections, suggestion and permission to complete this thesis.
5. All my lecturers in English Department of Faculty Humanities who are always giving me the best lecture.
6. My beloved parents, who give their endless love, support and never ending prayers.
7. Thanks for my family, who love me and give me support.

8. All of my friends, especially Adhi Prabowo, Vialita, Ovina, Tyka and Abid, thanks for the memories you share with me.
9. ## ABSTRACT

The thesis is entitled Translation Techniques used in comic Asterix and The Golden Sickle. It has an objective, it is to find out what techniques are used in translating the utterances in comic Asterix and The Golden Sickle.

In collecting data the researcher used some theories from books and internet, which are relevant to the object of the study. For the first step, researcher selected the bilingual comic. Second, the researcher read the comic and tried to understand the utterances. Third, the researcher started to select the utterances which are indicating some techniques.

From the analysis, it can be concluded, there are 422 utterances in comic Asterix and The Golden Sickle that have been analyzed based on translation techniques belonging to Molina and Albir's theory. There are 12 of 16 contains of 1 utterance (0.24%) for adaptation translation technique, 16 utterances (3.78%) for modulation technique, 4 utterances (0.95) for compensation, 88 utterances (20.75%) for discursive creation technique, 135 utterances (31.9%) for established equivalence technique, 75 utterances (17.8%) literal translation technique, 15 utterances (3.55%) for reduction technique, 2 utterances (0.47%) for transposition technique, 34 utterances (8.05%) for amplification technique, 26 utterances (6.16%) for variation technique, 4 utterances (0.95%) for description technique, 23 utterances (5.45%) for substitution technique which are found in comic Asterix and The Golden Sickle. The mostly - used is established equivalence technique.

The researcher already found the mostly used translation technique is established equivalence technique, because that data used expression which has difficult meaning, established equivalence uses a term or expression recognized by dictionary or language in use as an equivalent in TL, and the translator used this technique to find another expression in order to make the reader understand the message without changing the meaning, and the established equivalence technique is the easiest one for children to understand the translated text

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background of The Study

Language is system of symbols with standard meaning through which members of a society communicate with one another. Language is the most important thing for communication. People need language to transfer message from one to another. It is included in verbal communication, where communication occurs between two people or more in doing the activities like listening, speaking, writing, and reading. Surely, those activities need language to be done. Sapir in Bassnet-Mc Guine (1980-13) claims that “language is a guide to social reality and that human beings are at the mercy of the language that has become the medium of expression for their society”. On the other hand in written language, transferring or changing from one state of form to another, to turn into one’s own or another language is called Translation (dictionary of oxford definition: 2000).

Translation is basically a change of form. When people speak of the form of language, they are referring to the actual words, phrase, clauses, sentences, paragraphs, etc which are spoken or written. These forms are referring to as the surface of a language. It is the structural part of language which actually seen in print or heard in speech. In translation the form of source language transferred into the form of respecter (target) language. To produce a good translation, a competent translator has to be able to understand the ideas and thought, including the message expressed in the source language and representing the target language.

As a person who is involved in this process, that is a translator, he should be aware of various sentence constructions which may exist in translation works he is dealing with. One kind of translation work can find in literary works and comic is one of them. Comics are included into literary works, so literary translation is the focus of this study. Translation can not only be applied in literature or linguistic text, but also can be applied in comic. Sturm (2002:8) said “Comic is any image drawn in a certain cartoon style, for others it is any combination of image and text that can include children's books or flight safety cards, and some consider any sequence of images like cave paintings or Medieval tapestries comics while others associate the medium strongly with the genres of humor and fantasy”.

Comic is usually published in a form of picture series. This form can be printed in a book or any collecting paper such as in the newspaper. Comic is usually presented as a story of narrative in a sequence or event. The topic in comic can be so many themes because comic is a reading picture book read by people in all ages. Comic is usually written in order to give fun to the readers by the visual act of the pictures and the word balloons. The comic author may have a capability to draw the comic story in imaginary pictures to make the readers satisfied enough. So, translator should be translating the comic as good as the original. In here, the translator uses translation technique to make her/his work easier. Translation technique is the main discussion of this thesis, so the researcher gives the definition about translation techniques from Munday (2001:55) who defines “translation techniques (or translation shifts) as the smallest linguistic changes occurring in translation of ST (source text) to TT (target text)”.

In this thesis, the two languages involved are English and Indonesian. In relation to that, Toress (2003: 57-70) says “the reasons for using these two languages are that English is one of the top 10 languages used worldwide, and Indonesian language is the national language of where this research is conducted”. According to Molina and Albir (2002:509-511), translation technique has been divide into 18 forms; they are adaptation, borrowing, amplification, calque, compensation, description, discursive creation, established equivalent, generalization, linguistic amplification, linguistic compression, literal translation, modulation, particularization, reduction substitution, transposition, variation.

This thesis is written down in order to create a translation technique analysis that is used in Asterix and The Golden Sickle”. The researcher is proud of the translator of comic Asterix and The Golden Sickle because of his or her good abilities to show the comic in the different language and different utterance that can keep the meaning into one understanding of the whole utterances in that comic among the readers. The researcher is very interested in analyzing translation technique on utterances applied in comic Asterix and The Golden Sickle because the researcher has thought that bilingual comic book is usually published in contributing the way of learning English in Indonesia country, so this contribution in education may attract people to learn English language because bilingual comic contains so much picture series to support the language learning.

Asterix and The Golden Sickle is actually the very best collection of Asterix stories from the first published in 1959. Asterix may have been a character that is being like by people in all ages until now. From the language point of view, asterix and the golden sickle comic may have different complex sentence structure in the contexts of its story idea, picture or culture that are also different between the two languages of the bilingual comic. Also, by reading a bilingual comic, Indonesian people are easily understand how to use English in an appropriate way.

Bilingual comic and translation especially translation technique have a correlation to bring the message to target readers in a different way but still with the same message. By analyzing translation technique in bilingual comic, researcher would get the point of view as the translator why he or she used the technique considering the target readers. Being a translator will not just read the whole comic he or she wants to translate and select the words then writes down his or her mind in another language he or she has mastered, but a translator sometimes has to think and select accurate words in the right way in order to make it sense.

For the detail analysis, the researcher will also look for the theory and logical explanation on how translation techniques are use to translate utterances. The meaning shows that the capability of a translator is not just being a translator who transfers different words in one language into another directly. Understanding of translation and culture can help the translator scan the true intention from the author. At the end of the data analyze, the researcher will show the explanation of translation technique analysis of utterances used in Asterix and The Golden Sickle.

1.2 Statement of the Problem

Based on the background of the case, problem of this study can be stated as follows “What techniques are used in translating comic “Asterix and The Golden Sickle”?

1.3 Scope of the Study

This study only focuses on the translation techniques proposed by Molina & Albir. In translating comic “Asterix and the Golden Sickle” the researcher limited on the utterances of source language and the target language.

1.4 Objective of the Study

The objective of the study is to find out the translation techniques used in source text and the target text in comic “Asterix and the Golden Sickle”

1.5 Significance of the Study

1.6 Thesis Organization

Thesis organization is a summary of each chapter. It is to create a systematic writing. The thesis organization arranged as follows:

Chapter I: Introduction. This chapter consists of background of the study, statement of the problem, scope of the study, objective of the study, significance of the study and thesis organization.

Chapter II: Review of Related Literature. This chapter is arranged to support, to explain and to direct in analyzing the problem of the data. The theories used: translation, types of translation, process of translation and translation techniques.

Chapter III: Research Method. The third chapter consists of research design, unit of analysis, source of the data, technique of the data collection and technique of data analysis.

Chapter IV: Data Analysis. This chapter covers the analysis of the data that presents the research findings and discussion.

Chapter V: Conclusion and Suggestion. It is the conclusion of the study and suggestion related to the subject which analyzed.

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

Theory is very important to support and make perfect analysis. A theory is necessary in conducting a research. The theory used to make the research clearer. Considering that, the researcher uses some theories as the basis of their search also as the way to do the analysis.

In the review of related literature, there are discussions about translation, types of translation, process of translation and translation techniques.

2.1 Translation

Translation is rendering the meaning of a text into another language in the way that the author intended the text (Newmark, 1988:5). As a means of communication, translation used for multilingual notices, which at last appeared increasingly conspicuously in public places.

Furthermore, as a technique for learning foreign language, translation is a two-edged instrument: it has the special purpose of demonstrating the learner's knowledge of the foreign language, either as a form of control or to exercise the learner's intelligence in order to develop the competence. Here are some definitions of translation which proposed by some expert, Catford (1974:20) states "translation is replacement of textual material in one language (SL) by equivalent textual material in another language". Nida and Taber (1974:12) states that "translation consist of reproducing in the receptor language to the closest natural equivalent of the source language message, first in term of meaning, secondly in term of style”.

It can be said that translation means delivery of message contained in source language (SL) into target language (TL), and the message transferred in target language (TL) is closely similar to that in the source language (SL). Moreover, the translation has also several types that may help explained more detail about the types of translation.

2.2 Types of Translation.

There are many different classifications of translation in different ways. Generally, the process of translation is divided into two kinds, live translation and written translation. The first one is the translator demands to practice in translating and the statement directly, quickly, and exactly, without give the opportunity to revise the mistake element. The second type is a translator still gives the opportunity to revise the element of language mistake or according to his/her opinion less exactly equivalent to translation. Whereas, Newmark (1991:27) defines “the act of translating very briefly. It is the act of transferring the meaning of a stretch or a unit of language, the whole or a part, from one language to another”. According to Brislin (1976: 1), translation can be divided into four types:

1. Pragmatic translation

Pragmatic is the translation of a message with an interest inaccuracy of the information meant to be communicating in the target language form.

Belonging to such translation is the translation of technical information, such as repairing instructions.

2. Aesthetic-poetic translation

Aesthetic-poetic translation that does not only focus on the information, but also the emoticon, feeling, beauty involved in the original writing.

3. Ethnographic translation

Ethnographic translation that explicates the cultural context source and second language version.

4. Linguistic translation

The one that is concerned with equivalent meanings of the constituent morpheme of the second language and with grammatical form.

The other types of translation or translation approach are the ones related to the concept of dynamic translation, semantic translation, communicative translation, and artistic translation.

Nida and Taber (1982:28) say “dynamic translation tries to transfer the messages or ideas into a target language and to evoke in the target language readers the responses that are substantially equivalent to those experienced by the source text readers”. A definition of dynamic translation centers on the concept of dynamic equivalence, that is the closest natural equivalence to the source language message. Hohulin (1982:15) notices that the definition of dynamic translation contains three essential terms:

1. Equivalent, which points toward the source language message,

2. Natural, which points toward the receptor language,
3. Closest, which binds the two orientations together on the basis of the highest degree of approximation.

Dynamic equivalence approach can be used in the level of translating sentences or group of sentences, because the whole message lies here. Beekman and Callow (cited in Gutt 1991: 68) develop "the idiomatic approach which is similar to the dynamic equivalent approach in that it rejects form-orientated translation and emphasizes that a translation should convey the meaning of the original". It also demands that the translation be faithful to the "dynamics" of the original message. It resembles the dynamic equivalence approach in the sense that it rejects the form-oriented translation and emphasizes that a translation should convey the meaning of the original. A translation, according to this approach, should be faithful to the dynamics of the original, or the (SL) naturalness of language use and ease of comprehension.

The idea of dynamic translation was first proposed by Nida and Taber, and the semantic and communicative translation was by Newmark. Newmark (1991: 10) states "the concepts represent his main contribution to general theory of translation". It seems to be a reaction to the concepts of formal and dynamic equivalence, literal and free translation. In the above dichotomy, the first "pole" of the dichotomy (formal equivalence and literal translation) seems to be condemned for being not been able to transfer the message. Semantic and communicative translation seems to be in the middle of the two poles formal and dynamic translation. (Here formal translation understood as translation that pursues the formal equivalence and dynamic translation is the one that seeks for the dynamic equivalence.

Discussion on the issue of equivalence can see in the next sub-point.) Semantic translation emphasizes the “loyalty” to the original text. It is more semantic and syntactic oriented and, therefore, also author-centered. On the other hand, communicative translation emphasizes the loyalty to the “readers” and more reader-centered. The two concepts are not to be contrast with literal word-for-word translation which criticized in the concept of formal translation and literal translation. Newmark sees it as a translation procedure. Newmark (1991: 10-11) states that “literal word-for-word translation is not only the best in both communicative and semantic translation, but it is the only valid method of translation if equivalent effect is secured”. Newmark further maintains that, in fact, there is no pure communicative or pure semantic method of translating a text. There are overlapping bands of methods.

A translation can be more or less semantic as well as more or less communicative. Even a part of a sentence treated more communicatively or more semantically. Anyhow, Newmark maintains that the more important the language of the text or units of text, e.g. in the sacred texts, the more closely it should be translated. Finally, he points out that meaning is complicated, many leveled, a network of relation. The more generalization and simplification done, the less meaning is getting. Newmark (1991: 10) argued that the choice between semantic and communicative approach done in the level of translating sentences or even parts of sentence. In the area of literary translation, Chukovsky (1984: 20) says “style is taken as importantly as the other aspects for style is the portrait of the author: so when a translator distorts his style he also distorts his face”. Beside the meaning, impression on the readers should also be kept the same. Chukovsky (1984: 80) says “this translation expert states that it is essential that the readers of the translation should be carried into the very same sphere as the readers of the original, and the translation must act in the very same nerves”. To the researcher, translation is not only transferring the meaning but also the style especially in manual book, one should consider about the diction of the word in order to communicate the message for the reader.

The types of translation according to Nababan (1999:29-46), Newmark (1988: 45-47), and Larson (1984;15) are:

1. Word for word translation

The type of translation is a translation that simply translates word by word as written as SL order into TL order.

For example:

SL: Go to school.

TL: Pergi ke sekolah

2. Literal translation

In this type the source language grammatically constructions are converted to their nearest target language equivalent, but the lexical words are translated singly, out of context.

For example:

SL: The car shoot down the one-way street, scattering, and the traffic headed towards them, horn angrily blaring at them.

TL: Mobil itu meluncur di jalan satu arah itu, melawan arus laju kendaraan di depan mereka. Bunyi klakson mobil bersahut-sahutan. Menggemarkan kemarahan para pengemudi.

3. Semantic translation

It takes more account of the esthetic value. It also admits creative expectation and allows the translator intuitive empathy with the original.

SL: He is a book-worm.

TL: Dia adalah orang yang sangat suka membaca.

4. Free translation

It reproduces the matter without the manner, or the content with the form of the original. In this type, the translator has the freedom to express the ideas into TL.

SL: Killing two birds with one stone.

TL: Sambil menyelam minum air.

5. Idiomatic translation

It is mainly focussed on the reproduction of the message of the SL, but tends to distort nuances of meaning by preferring idioms, which do not exist in the original.

SL: I'll shoot you a beer.

TL: Mari minum bir bersama-sama, saya yang bayar.

6. Communicative translation

It attempts to reader the exact contextual meaning of the original in such a way that both content and language are readily acceptable and comprehensible to the readership.

SL: Beware of dog!

TL: Awas ada anjing.

In Translation text, the important aspect is the naturalness on the source language. So the reader is unaware that they are reading a translation text. To translate any words or sentences, it needs to be process by certain way. The translation process can be seen bellow.

2.3 Process of Translation

The process of translation is series of activities which be done by a translator at the time she/he transfers the message from the source language into the target language (Nababan, 1997:6). A translator should be careful in doing the activity of translation, because a mistake in one point may result mistakes in another point. If this happened, the result of the translation would be less satisfying.

When translating a text, four levels more or less consciously translated in mind. According to Newmark (1988:19), there are four processes of translation:

1. The SL text level, the level of language, where one begins and which one continually (but not continuously) goes back to. This is the level of literary translation of the source language into the target language; the level of translation has to be eliminate, but also acts as a connective of paraphrase and the paper-down of synonyms. Translation is pre-eminently the occupation in which the translator has to be thinking several things at the same times.

2. The referential level, the level of objects and events, real or imaginary, which progressively have to be visualize and built up, and which is an essential part, first of the comprehension, then of the reproduction process. One should not read a sentence without seeing it on the referential level, whether text is technical or literary or institutional, one has to make up mind summarily and continuously.
3. The cohesive level, which is more general and grammatical, which traces the train of thought, the feeling tone (positive or negative) and the various presuppositions of the SL text. This level encompasses both comprehension and reproduction: it presents an overall picture, to which the language level has to be adjust. This level also links the first and the second level. It follows both the structure and the moods of the text.
4. The level of naturalness, of common language appropriate to the writer or the speaker in a certain situation. Natural depends on the relationship between the writer and the readership and the topic or situation. What is natural in one situation may be unnatural in another, but everyone has a natural, ‘neutral’ language where spoken and informal written language more or less coincide.

According to Nida and Taber in Hoed (1993:57), the processes of translation are:

- a. Analyzing (learning the source text).

It is the first step in which the content and the purpose in the source text is entirely be read and be understood.

- b. Transferring (replacing the substance of source language with its equivalence substance of target language).

In this step, the message in the source text is transfer into the target text.

The message can be a content, idea or thought.

- c. Restructuring (adapted the translated text to the turn of reader).

Restructure means rearrange. In other word, after transferring the message from source text into the target text, a translator has to rearrange.

According to Larson (1984:17): “when translating a text, the translator’s goal is an idiomatic translation which makes every effort to communicate their meaning of the source text into the natural forms of the receptor language”.

Larson simply presents the diagram of the process of translation which is quoted from Basnet in translation studies (1991 : 16)

in Translation Studies (1991:16)

Based on the diagram above, we can conclude that process of translation can divided into three parts.

The first is analysis, it means the surface structure (message) as given in the SL analyzed in terms of the grammatical relationship and the meanings of the words and combination of words.

The second is transfer, it means the analyzed material is transfer in the mind of the translator from the source language to the receptor language. The last process is restructuring, means that the transferred material is restructure in order to make the final message fully acceptable in the TL. The different forms between square and triangle show the form of the text to be translates and the translation results. They describe that in translation text, the forms of the source language may be change into appropriate forms of the receptor language in order to achieve the idiomatic translation. By knowing the processes according to some experts above, anyone can do translating easily. It is because the processes above give explanation that anyone can follow.

One of the most important things to consider in the process of translating is to understand the point of the source text within the framework of the source-language discourse. To increase this understanding, the researcher must know the cultural differences and the various techniques of translation in the source language and target language.

For now translation has become very significant in our life, not only in paperwork, novel, short story but also in household products, from the back of shampoo bottles, sachets of lemon tea powder and the instruction manual for a vacuum cleaner, for example there is a good translation Keep out of reach of children translated into Jauhkan dari jangkauan anak-anak and bad translation The police nailed the convicts translated into Polisi memaku para penjahat itu. The more suitable translation would be Polisi menangkap para penjahat itu. This is possibly caused by the translation techniques used in translating the SL text, which some people tend to disregard them in their translation.

2.4 Translation Techniques.

“Translation techniques are defined as “the smallest linguistic changes occurring in translation of ST (Source Text) to TT (Target Text)”. A technique is the result of a choice made by a translator, its validity will depend on various questions related to the context, the purpose of the translation, audience expectations, etc. If a technique is evaluate out of context as justified, unjustified or erroneous, this denies the functional and dynamic nature of translation. A technique can only be judge meaningfully when it is evaluate within a particular context. Therefore, the translator do not consider it makes sense to evaluate a technique by using different terminology, two opposing pairs (one correct and the other incorrect), e.g., Delisle’s explicitation/implication and addition/omission.

Translation techniques are not good or bad in themselves; they are used functionally and dynamically in terms of:

1. The genre of the text (letter of complaint, contract, tourist brochure, etc.)

2. The type of translation (technical, literary, etc.)
3. The mode of translation (written translation, sight translation, consecutive interpreting, etc.)
4. The purpose of the translation and the characteristics of the translation audience
5. The method chosen (interpretative-communicative, etc.)

Translation techniques are procedures to analyze and classify how translation equivalence works. Molina and Albir (2002:509) state that translation techniques have five basic characteristics:

1. They affect the result of the translation
2. They are classified by comparison with the original
3. They affect micro-units of text
4. They are by nature discursive and contextual
5. They are functional

Obviously, translation techniques are not the only categories available to analyze a translated text. Coherence, cohesion, thematic progression and contextual dimensions also intervene in the analysis.

Molina and Albir's (2002:509-511) classification of translation techniques is based on the following criteria:

1. To isolate the concept of technique from other related notion (translation strategy, method, and error)
2. To include only procedure that are characteristic of the translation texts and not those related to comparison of languages.

3. To maintain the notion that translation techniques are functional
4. In relation to the terminology, to maintain the most commonly used terms.
5. To formulate new techniques to explain mechanisms that had not yet been describe.

There are some techniques included in Molina and Albir's (2002:509-511) classification. They are adaptation, amplification, borrowing, calque, compensation, description, discursive creation, established equivalent, generalization, linguistic amplification, linguistic compression, literal translation, modulation, particularization, reduction, substitution (linguistic, paralinguistic), transposition, and variation. Below are the explanations of each translation techniques take from Molina and Albir (2002:509-511) quoted in Hartono (2009:36-57), also the examples are take from; they classify them into 16 techniques:

1. Adaptation Technique

This technique changes a cultural element from SL into TL equally.

For example:

SL: Sincerely yours

TL: Hormat saya

2. Amplification Technique

This technique transfers the meaning from SL into TL by making explanation more specifically, and it is possible occurring some Adding, Losing, and Paraphrasing meaning.

For example:

SL: Ramadhan

TL: Muslim month of fasting

3. Borrowing Technique

This technique borrows some words or terms in another language, and it is applied into the TL without any change of spelling or pronunciation.

For example:

SL: Pistol

TL: Pistol

4. Calque Technique

This technique is the same as borrowing technique. It translates SL into TL with modification in spelling or pronunciation in order to be understandable in TL.

For example:

SL: Ketchup

TL: Kecap

5. Compensation Technique

This technique used to introduce a SL element of information or stylistic effect in another place in the TL, because it cannot be replaced in the same place as in SL

For example:

SL: a: “Why don’t you just close the door?” she asked.

b: “Me?” exclaimed Mrs. Albert Forrester, for the first time in her life regardless of grammar.

b: ”Apa?” teriak Nyonya Albert Forrester, untuk pertama kali dalam hidupnya lupa pada tata bahasa.

In this case, Mrs. Forrester replied by using word ”Me?” than word ”I”, so it is said that she forgot the right grammar. If it is translated into Indonesian, word ”Me” in this case, it will use Compensation technique, and the word ”Me” would be translated into ”Apa?” or ”Apaan?”. It is because in Indonesian there is no equal term (Utterance pronominal) related to the case.

6. Description Technique

This technique uses description to replace a term or expression with a description of its form or function.

For example:

SL: Cow-creamer

TL: Poci yang berbentuk sapi untuk tempat susu

7. Discursive Creation Technique

This technique establishes a temporary equivalence that is totally unpredictable out of context.

For example:

“Rumble Fish” is the title of film, and it is translated into Spanish to be “La ley de la calle”. “Rumble Fish” here does not have relation in meaning with “La ley de la calle”. “Rumble Fish” means (in Indonesian) ikan gemuruh, meanwhile “La ley de la calle” means (in Indonesian) jalur or lintasan jalan yang ramai.

8. Established Equivalence technique

This technique uses a term or expression that recognized by dictionary or language in use as an equivalent in TL.

For example:

SL: They are as like as two peas

TL: Mereka sangat mirip

9. Generalization Technique

This technique changes particular information from SLT into general information to TLT.

For example:

SL: When shot, she was apparently taking a walk

TL: Tampaknya dia terbunuh pada saat jalan jalan

The example above, word shot (tertembak) is generalized in TL to be terbunuh (killed)

10. Literal Translation Technique

This technique is to translate a word or an expression word for word. It is the direct transfer of SL text into a grammatically and idiomatically appropriate

TL text in which the translators' task is limited to observe the adherence to the linguistic servitudes of the TL.

For example:

SL: She brings a flower

TL: Dia (perempuan) membawa setangkai bunga

The example above, word by word translated into a correct order as its function.

11. Modulation Technique

This technique changes point of view the meaning from SL into TL lexically and structurally.

For example:

SL: The dog bites a bone

TL: Sebuah tulang di gigit seekor anjing

SL: You (Man) are going to have a child

TL: Kamu akan segera menjadi ayah

The examples above change the subject into object and object into subject also change point of view from subject into another point of view.

12. Particularization Technique

This technique is to use a more precise term, it is the counter side of Generalization Technique.

For example:

SL: “I found this flower over there”

TL: “Aku menemukan mawar ini disebelah sana”

13. Reduction

This technique reduces some information elements in SL, and transferred it into a new form, but it still has main information from SL.

For example:

SL: The proposal was rejected and repudiated

TL: Usulnya ditolak

The example above changes phrase rejected and repudiated from SL into a new form (word) become ditolak, and there is a reduction process in this translation process because word rejected and word repudiated have same negative meaning, and it can be replaced into only one lexical in TL to be ditolak.

14. Substitution Technique

This technique is to change linguistic elements such as intonation and gestures or vice versa, this always happens in Interpreting.

For example:

When someone is nodding, it is indicate of agreement, and if Japanese bows in front of someone else, it is indicate of greeting (Hello) or Thanking (Thank you)

15. Transposition Technique

This technique changes a grammatical category from SL into different grammatical category in TL.

For example:

SL: She has a lot of fans, because of her beauty

TL: Dia memiliki banyak penggemar, karena dia cantik

The example above shows word beauty as a Noun in SL, and it translated into cantik as an Adjective in TL, it changes grammatical category from Noun form in SL into Adjective form in TL.

16. Variation Technique

This technique is to change linguistic or paralinguistic elements such as gesture and intonation that effect aspects of linguistic variation (change of textual tone, style, social, social dialect, etc) based on target reader of the text.

For example:

SL: “Shit! How dare you!”

TL: “Kurang ajar! Berani beraninya kamu!”

The example above changes the style meaning for adults from word Shit (SL) into Kurang ajar (TL) that is more polite and acceptable for children or others (target readers), than it is translated into harsh one such as Brengsek in TL.

The techniques of translation which consider source language oriented techniques are borrowing; pure borrowing, calque, and literal translation. Target language oriented techniques are naturalized borrowing, adaptation, compensation, description, discursive creation, established equivalent, generalization, modulation, particularization, reduction, substitution, transposition, variation. In addition, some techniques can also be considered techniques partially oriented toward the source language and target language cultures such as amplification and combinations of source language oriented and target language oriented techniques of translation.

It means that the identification of techniques of translation used by the translator in the translations of cultural terms can lead the researcher to the techniques of translation applied by the translator to his/her translations.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHOD

A research has an important role in developing a science, knowledge, and technology. By doing research, someone can explore, and discover new thing that he or she does not know before and also to improve what he or she has already known. This research method is arranged based on the problem analyzed and the main purpose of the research. The research method in this study covers research design, unit of analysis, source of data, technique of data collection and technique of data analysis.

3.1 Research Design

Nawawi in Lusiana (2006:33) states that “descriptive method is a research method to describe the subject or object of the research based on the fact or reality”. Based on the problem analyzed, this research used a descriptive qualitative method, because this study had a purpose to describe and analyze the techniques used in translating comic “Asterix and the Golden Sickle”. This study was carried out by formulating of the problem, collecting data, classifying data, analyzing data, and drawing conclusion.

3.2 Unit of Analysis

The unit of analysis this thesis was utterances and its translation used in comic “Asterix and the Golden Sickle”, published by Sinar Harapan copyright @1990.

3.3 Source of Data

The data of this study were taken from comic “Asterix and The Golden Sickle” by Pilote translated into “Asterix dan Sabit Emas” it was published by Sinar Harapan in 1990.

3.4 Technique of Data Collection

The data of this study were collected by using the following steps:

1. Searching the comic in the internet
2. Downloading the comic

3.5 Technique of Data Analysis

The technique of data analysis was the method used to analyze the collected data. The technique of data analysis used in thesis study consist of the following steps:

1. Reading the data

Read the comic in both versions to make it easier

2. Selecting the data

Selecting the data every utterances which contains translation technique in the source text and target text

3. Identifying the translation techniques

The techniques found in source text and target text were identified

4. Classifying

The technique were classified based on their types by Molina and Albir.( 2002)

5. Analyzing the data

6. Drawing the conclusion

Concluding the translation technique used in comic “Asterix and The Golden Sickle”.

CHAPTER IV

DATA ANALYSIS

This chapter presents the data analysis in order to present the result of the research. The data analysis covers the finding of the translation technique and the discussion of the finding.

4.1 Findings

Table 4.1 shows the finding of translation technique based on all utterances used in comic untitled “Asterix and the golden sickle”. The researcher classifies the data based on the theory of translation techniques used belongs to Molina and Albir (2002: 509).

Table 4.1 Translation Techniques Used in comic “Asterix and the Golden Sickle”

Total		424	100

From the comic of Asterix and The Golden Sickle the researcher have been find 13 techniques of translation such as established equivalence has high frequency because in that table 4.1, established equivalence has 135 data or 31.99%. . In comic “Asterix and The Golden Sickle” the translator used established equivalence because most of the expressions in source text have equivalent with expressions in target text and the translator have to find another expression in order to accept the reader without changing the message. The next technique is discursive creation and the researcher find 88 data or 20.85% after that is literal technique has 75 data or 17.78%.

In the discussion the researcher gives explanation why those translation techniques being applied in comic “Asterix and The Golden Sickle”.

4.2 Discussion

The researcher found that the translator uses thirteen techniques of Molina and Albir in comic “Asterix and Golden Sickle”. There are compensation, description, discursive creation, established equivalence, literal translation, particularization, reduction, transposition, amplification, variation technique, adaptation and modulation.

4.2.1 Adaptation

This technique changes a cultural element from SL into TL equally.

Excerpt 1:

Balloon 38

ST: “It’s present for Metallurgix, just a little gift as a token of friendship..”
(utterance 38)

TT: “Oleh-oleh buat chluturix, kerukunan terjamin berkat adanya hadiah-hadiah kecil seperti ini,kan?” (utterance 38)

In the source text above, the word of present in source text is translated into Oleh-oleh in target text.

In the source text above, there is a source language that is translated into a target language by using adaptation technique. The word present in the source text is translated into Oleh-oleh in the target text.

The translator translates present into Oleh-oleh by using adaptation technique of translation since the target language culture does not have concepts which are exactly the same as the terms presented above. The translator’s purpose in rendering those terms, as shown in the examples above through adaptation technique of translation, is to make his translation sounds more natural so that target language readers have a similar strong feeling when reading the translated manual book as source language readers do. In this case the translator changes the real meaning since it replaces the SL cultural element with one which has the same situation condition in the TL culture.

4.2.2 Modulation

This technique changes point of view the meaning from SL into TL lexically and structurally.

Excerpt 2:

Balloon 33

ST: “I will now give you a song of farewell..” (utterance 33)

TT: “Sebagai lagu perpisahan akan kunyanyikan..’ (utterance 33)

In source text above the sentence of I will now give you a song of farewell into is translated. Sebagai lagu perpisahan akan kunyanyikan. As the meaning of modulation technique is change the point of view from ST to TT the translator change the structure like I will now give you a song of farewell as passive voice but in target text there is a change become Sebagai lagu perpisahan akan kunyanyikan. Even though there is change the structure but the translator did not change the message.

Excerpt 3:

20

Balloon 196

ST: "But then perhaps they've kidnapped Metallugrix?" (utterance 196)

TT: "Kalau begitu, mungkin Chlaturix di culik komplotan itu ya.." (utterance 196)

In source text above is translated the word of kidnapped into target text become di culik. As the meaning of modulation technique is change the point of view from ST to TT the translator change the structure like kidnapped as active but in target text there is a change become di culik as passive. Even though there is change the structure but the translator did not change the message.

4.2.3 Compensation

This technique is used to introduce a SL element of information or stylistic effect in another place in the TL, because it cannot be replaced in the same place as in SL.

Excerpt 4:

102. Siapa?

103. Ada dua orang datang ketempatku mencari chluturix

104. Chluturix? Bagaimana ciri-cirinya?

105. Wah! Apa ya! Yang jelas yang satu tinggi yang lain kecil

106. Aah ya! Saya lupa... yang satunya selalu membawa menhir..

107. Apaa? Menhir?

Balloon 107

ST: “A menhir” (utterance 107)

TT: “Apaa? Menhir?” (utterance 107)

In source text above the translator using compensation technique, the word

A menhir is translated into apaa? menhir?.

In this case the translator wants to find another express which one have the same meaning in target text because there is no equal utterance in target text.

Excerpt 5:

140. Kenalkan aku shemukphendix, pemilik kedai ria ini, chlanamchlotorix bilang, kalian mau mencari sabit emas?

141. Begitulah

142. Sabit istimewa harganya Cuma 3000 keping emas, mau?

143. Gila, uangku Cuma 100 keping. Biasanya harganya Cuma segitu kan?

Balloon 143

ST: “ What? I've only got 100 gold coins, that's a fair price for a sickle!”
(utterance 143)

TT: “ Gila, uangku Cuma 100 keping. Biasanya harganya Cuma segitu kan?”
(utterance 143)

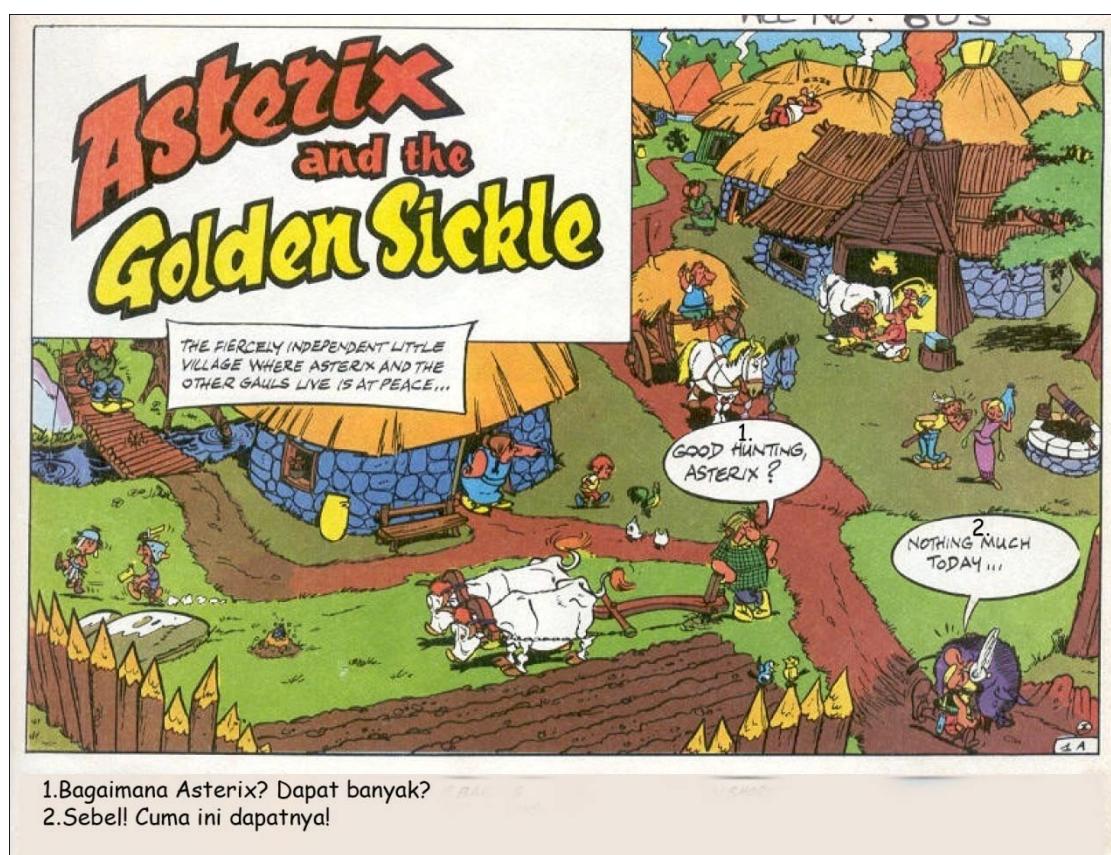

In source text above the translator using compensation technique, the word What? is translated into Gila.

In this case the translator wants to find another express which one have the same meaning in target text because the word What? In source text that cannot be reproduced in the same place in target text which have the same expression that's why the translator try to find another word to translate the expression of surprise.

4.2.4 Discursive Creation

This technique establishes a temporary equivalence that is totally unpredictable out of context.

Excerpt 6:

Balloon 1

ST: “Good hunting, Asterix?”( utterance 1)

TT: “Bagaimana Asterix? Dapat banyak?” (utterance 1)

In the source text above, there is a source language that is translated into a target language by using discursive creation.

The phrase Good hunting is translated into Dapat banyak. The translator produces a temporary equivalence which is totally unpredictable for the term Good hunting by rendering it into Dapat banyak. Good hunting can be translated with perburuan yang bagus, but the translator changes the real meaning to become Dapat banyak. This theory is an application of discursive creation which is totally unpredictable out of context.

Excerpt 7:

3. Ayo anak-anak, siapa nenek moyang kita yang sebenarnya?

4. celeng panggangnya mau lagi Obelix?

5. Terang donk

Balloon 5

ST: “Yes, please” (utterance 5)

TT: “Terang donk” (utterance 5)

In the source text above, there is a source language that is translated into a target language by using discursive creation.

The expression Yes, please is translated into Terang donk. The translator produces a temporary equivalence which is totally unpredictable for the term Yes, please by rendering it into Terang donk. Yes, please can be translated with iya, but the translator changes the real meaning to become Terang donk. This theory is an application of discursive creation which is totally unpredictable out of context.

Excerpt 8:

48. Sepupuku chlulturix cukup kaya ya...
 49. Oohhh yaaa!
 50. Buat apa emas yang di terima sebagai pengganti sabit emasnya itu ya?

Balloon 48

ST: “Metallugrix must be doing well” (utterance 48)

TT: “Sepupuku chlulturix cukup kaya ya...” (utterance 48)

In the source text above, there is a source language that is translated into a target language by using discursive creation.

The expression must be doing well is translated into cukup kaya ya. The translator produces a temporary equivalence which is totally unpredictable for the term must be doing well by rendering it into cukup kaya ya. must be doing well can be translated with good job but the translator changes the real meaning to become cukup kaya ya. This theory is an application of discursive creation which is totally unpredictable out of context.

4.2.5 Established Equivalence

This technique uses a term or expression that recognized by dictionary or language in use as an equivalent in TL.

Excerpt 9:

Balloon 14

ST: “good sickle don’t grow on trees” (utterance 14)

TT: “susah mencari yang mutunya bagus” (utterance 14)

In the source text above, there is a source language that is translated into a target language by using established equivalent technique.

The clause good sickle don’t grow on trees is translated into susah mencari yang mutunya bagus in the target language. The phrase good sickle don’t grow on trees like an idiom that has meaning is golden sickle is difficult to find and it can be the same meaning with susah mencari yang mutunya bagus the phrase in target text. So the translator the translator changes the meaning of word in order to make an understandable sentence for the readers.

Excerpt 10:

16. sabit bikinan Chluritix memang paling baik dan terkenal dimana-mana
17. memang betul
18. Tetapi lutetia jauh .. untuk bisa sampai kesana,kita harus berjalan melewati hutan rimba tempat tinggal garong dan rampok
19. Dengan senang hati, aku akan pergi ke Lutetia pak dukun

Balloon 19

ST: “I am prepared to go Lutetia” (utterance 19)

TT: “Dengan senang hati, aku akan pergi ke Lutetia pak dukun” (utterance 19)

In the source text above, there is a source language that is translated into a target language by using established equivalent technique.

The phrase I am prepared to go Lutetia is translated into Dengan senang hati, aku akan pergi ke Lutetia pak dukun in the target language. The phrase I am prepared to go Lutetia like an expression that have meaning ready to go and it can be the same meaning with Dengan senang hati, aku akan pergi ke Lutetia pak dukun the phrase in target text. So the translator the translator changes the meaning of word in order to make an understandable sentence for the readers.

Excerpt 11:

24. Eee....ya deh,,ya deh

25. Ahh!

26. Aku juga! Soalnya cluturix adalah saudara sepupuku jauh. Dia termasuk yang paling menonjol di keluargaku...hidupnya sukses

27. Kami berangkat hari ini juga

28. Kawan-kawan yang lain akan kuberitahu tentang keberangkatan kalian

Balloon 27

ST: “Lets get going straight away” (utterance 27)

TT: “Kami berangkat hari ini juga” (utterance 27)

In the source text above, there is a source language that is translated into a target language by using established equivalent technique.

The phrase Lets get going straight away is translated into Kami berangkat hari ini juga in the target language. The phrase Lets get going straight away like an expression, which is have the same meaning with keep going but the translator change with another expression such as Kami berangkat hari ini juga in target text. So the translator the translator changes the meaning of word in order to make an understandable sentence for the readers.

4.2.6 Literal Translation

This technique is to translate a word or an expression word for word. It is the direct transfer of SL text into a grammatically and idiomatically appropriate TL text in which the translators' task is limited to observe the adherence to the linguistic servitudes of the TL.

Excerpt 12:

6. Siapa yang berteriak
7. Itu suara Panoramix dukun kita!
8. Di pohon yang di sana itu

Balloon

ST: “It’s the voice of our Druid Getafix!” (utterance 7)

TT: “Itu suara Panoramix dukun kita!” (utterance 7)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using literal technique. For instance, the SLT element information is translated word for word It’s the voice of our Druid Getafix Into Itu suara Panoramix dukun kita!

The translator translated it word by word by observing cognitive meaning which has very closely related to the target language in this case is Indonesian and it looked like the translator did not find one of the potential problems in translation which can change the meaning from word by word on this text.

Excerpt 13:

Balloon 22

ST: "It's too far too dangerous" (utterance 22)

TT: "Jauh! Berbahaya lagi" (utterance 22)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using literal technique. For instance, the SLT element information is translated word for word It's too far too dangerous Into Itu Jauh! Berbahaya lagi.

The translator translated it word by word by observing cognitive meaning which has very closely related to the target language in this case is Indonesian and it looked like the translator did not find one of the potential problems in translation which can change the meaning from word by word on this text.

4.2.7 Reduction

This technique reduces some information elements in SL, and transferred it into a new form, but it still has main information from SL.

Excerpt 14:

Balloon 17

ST: “you are right there” (utterance 17)

TT: “memang betul” (utterance 17)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using reduction technique. For instance, the phrase you are right there is translated into memang betul in Indonesian, and there is an ellipsis process when transferring the idea from SLT into TLT. The translator reduced words there from phrase believe you are right there because the word you are right itself already has a meaning memang betul in Indonesian without followed by words there.

Excerpt 15:

Balloon 43

ST: “Did you hear that?” (utterance 43)
TT: “Dengar gak?” (utterances 43)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using reduction technique. For instance, the phrase Did you hear that? is translated into Dengar gak? in Indonesian, and there is an ellipsis process when transferring the idea from SLT into TLT. The translator reduced words Did you from phrase Did you hear that? because the word hear that itself already has a meaning memang betul in Indonesian without followed by words Did you.

4.2.8 Transposition technique

This technique changes a grammatical category from SL into different grammatical category in TL.

Excerpt 16:

Balloon 150

ST: “My menhir, please,,” (utterance 150)

TT: “Mau ambil menhirku” (utterance 150)

The source text above My menhir, please translated into Mau ambil menhirku by using transposition technique.

The translator change the form in this case, for instance the word My menhir in source text is subject but in target text become object

4.2.9 Amplification

This technique transfers the meaning from SL into TL by making explanation more specifically, and it is possible occurring some Adding, Losing, and Paraphrasing meaning.

Excerpt 17:

Balloon 3

ST: "Well young man, and into how many parts is Gaul divided?"
 (utterance 3)

TT: "Ayo anak-anak, siapa nenek moyang kita yang sebenarnya?"
 (utterance 3)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using amplification technique.

For instance, Well young man, and into how many parts is Gaul divided which means in Indonesian Ayo anak-anak, siapa nenek moyang kita yang sebenarnya, in this utterance, the translator tried to make some paraphrase by giving additional information on target text in order to be compatible with what is going on with the teacher in the sequence.

Excerpt 18:

16. sabit bikinan Chluritix memang paling baik dan terkenal dimana-mana
17. memang betul
18. Tetapi lutetia jauh .. untuk bisa sampai kesana,kita harus berjalan melewati hutan rimba tempat tinggal garong dan rampok
19. Dengan senang hati, aku akan pergi ke Lutetia pak dukun

Balloon 16

ST: "he's right, it's well known that Metallurgix makes the best sikles.." (utterance 16)

TT: "sabit bikinan Chluritix memang paling baik dan terkenal dimana-mana"(utterance 16)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using amplification technique.

For instance, well known which means in Indonesian terkenal dimana-mana, but in this utterance, the translator tried to add some further explanation by giving additional information on target text in order to make that sequence amuse.

Excerpt 19:

24. Eee....ya deh,,ya deh
25. Ahh!
26. Aku juga! Soalnya cluturix adalah saudara sepupuku jauh. Dia termasuk yang paling menonjol di keluargaku...hidupnya sukses
27. Kami berangkat hari ini juga
28. Kawan-kawan yang lain akan kuberitahu tentang keberangkatan kalian

Balloon 28

ST: “I'll tell the others” (utterance 28)

TT: “Kawan-kawan yang lain akan kuberitahu tentang keberangkatan kalian” (utterance 28)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using amplification technique.

For instance, the sentence I'll tell the others which means in Indonesian Kawan-kawan yang lain akan kuberitahu tentang keberangkatan kalian, but in this utterance, the translator tried to add some further explanation by giving additional information on target text in order to make easy the reader catch the message because the word the others in this sequence not clear enough.

4.2.10 Variation Technique

This technique is to change linguistic or paralinguistic elements such as gesture and intonation that effect aspects of linguistic variation (change of textual tone, style, social, social dialect, etc) based on target reader of the text.

Excerpt 20:

Balloon 2

ST: “Nothing much, today” (utterance 2)

TT: “Sebel! Cuma ini dapatnya!” (utterance 2)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using variation technique.

For instance, phrase Nothing much, in dictionary it means do not get much, but the translator translate Nothing much into Sebel! Cuma ini dapatnya!. In target culture the word Sebel means disappointed it is belong to that sequence. Because this technique changes a textual tone, style, social, social dialect, etc based on the target reader of the text, and due to the target reader of the text a kid, so it is translated into Sebel which is more simple and understandable for kid.

Excerpt 21:

Balloon 12

ST: "It couldn't be worse timed! I have To start soon for the forest of the Carnutes, to attend the great annual conference of gaulish Druids, I can't go without a sickle!"( utterance 12)

TT: "sialnya, dalam waktu dekat ini aku di undang ikut setan dugal (seminar tahunan dukun Galia). Tanpa sabit emas, aku tidak bisa pergi." (utterance 12)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using variation technique. For instance, phrase It couldn't be worse timed, in dictionary it means membuang-buang waktu, but the translator translate It couldn't be worse timed into sialnya.

In target culture the word sialnya means bad job it is belong to that sequence. Because this technique changes a textual tone, style, social, social dialect, etc based on the target reader of the text, and due to the target reader of the text a kid, so it is translated into sialnya which is more simple and understandable for kid.

4.2.11 Description

This technique uses description to replace a term or expression with a description of its form or function.

Excerpt

Page 3 balloon 11.

ST: "This is Terrible Mistletoe must be cut with A Golden Sickle if it is to have Magic Powers!" (utterance 11)

TT: "Padahal daun ramuan jamu super manjur untuk kalian, harus di potong dengan sabit emas" (utterance 11)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using description technique. For instance, the word Mistletoe in Indonesian is green plants, and then the translator tried to describe what Mistletoe is by translating it into Indonesian and describing it according to its function and its form into daun ramuan jamu in order to the target reader especially Indonesian get the idea what Mistletoe is. It is belong to sequence in that comic.

4.2.12 Substitution

This technique is to change linguistic elements such as intonation and gestures or vice versa, this always happens in Interpreting.

Excerpt 23:

Balloon 9

ST: “Scrggngrghjhggbg” (utterance 9)

TT: “Alaaa, tobaaat, tobat, tobat!”( utterance 9)

The source text above is translated into the target text by using substitution technique. For instance, the word Scrggngrghjhggbg is translated into Alaaa, tobaaat, tobat, tobat! in Indonesian which indicates intonation of sad expression in Indonesian way as the target language.

Excerpt 24:

Balloon 25

ST: “Oh!” (utterance 25)

TT: “Ahh!” (utterance 25)

In source text above the translator using substitution to translate the word

Oh! In source text into Ahh!.

For instance above the word Oh! was translated into Ahh!. In Indonesian which indicates intonation of understanding in Indonesian way as the target text.

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

The conclusion is described based on the comic Asterix and The Golden Sickle, whereas the suggestion is intended to give information to the next researchers who are interested in analyzing data using the same theory. After analyzing the research findings and discussing them, the researcher draws the conclusion and also gives suggestion to next researchers who are interested in doing similar research. The explanation is as follow.

5.1 Conclusion

From the analysis, it can be concluded, there are 422 utterances in comic Asteric and The Golden Sickle that have been analyzed based on translation techniques belonging to Molina and Albir's theory. The conclusion can be stated as follows:

There are 12 of 16 translation techniques which are found in comic asterix and The Golden Sickle there are 1 utterance (0.24%) for adaptation translation technique, 16 utterances (3.78%) for modulation technique, 4 utterances (0.95%) for compensation, 88 utterances (20.75%) for discursive creation technique, 135 utterances (31.9%) for established equivalence technique, 75 utterances (17.8%) literal translation technique, 15 utterances (3.55%) for reduction technique, 2 utterances (0.47%) for transposition technique, 34 utterances (8.05%) for amplification technique, 26 utterances (6.16%) for variation technique, 4 utterances (0.95%) for description technique, 23 utterances (5.45%) for substitution technique.

The researcher already found the mostly used translation technique is established equivalence technique, because that data used expression which has difficult meaning, established equivalence uses a term or expression that recognized by dictionary or language in use as an equivalent in TL, and the translator used this technique to find another expression in order to make the reader understand the message without changing the meaning.

The usage of these translation techniques will so much help the translator in facing with the problem of translation. Translation techniques will also help the translator to make the utterances in comic understandable and meaningful to the target readers.

5.2 Suggestions

The researcher would like to give some suggestions:

1. The readers who are interested in translation study and want to enrich their knowledge about the translation techniques in utterances of comic or some other field related to translation, they would comprehend the text before doing other research dealing with the translation.
2. Dian Nuswantoro University and especially for English Department students to use this thesis as a reference when they are dealing with a research related to the translation study, especially translation technique. Also this thesis gives them an image of how the applications of translation technique on comic looks like.

3. The next researcher, this thesis can be a reference for anyone who wants to do translation work on bilingual comics.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

The conclusion is described based on the comic Asterix and The Golden Sickle, whereas the suggestion is intended to give information to the next researchers who are interested in analyzing data using the same theory. After analyzing the research findings and discussing them, the researcher draws the conclusion and also gives suggestion to next researchers who are interested in doing similar research. The explanation is as follow.

5.1 Conclusion

From the analysis, it can be concluded, there are 422 utterances in comic Asteric and The Golden Sickle that have been analyzed based on translation techniques belonging to Molina and Albir's theory. The conclusion can be stated as follows:

There are 12 of 16 translation techniques which are found in comic asterix and The Golden Sickle there are 1 utterance (0.24%) for adaptation translation technique, 16 utterances (3.78%) for modulation technique, 4 utterances (0.95) for compensation, 88 utterances (20.75%) for discursive creation technique, 135 utterances (31.9%) for established equivalence technique, 75 utterances (17.8%) literal translation technique, 15 utterances (3.55%) for reduction technique, 2 utterances (0.47%) for transposition technique, 34 utterances (8.05%) for amplification technique, 26 utterances (6.16%) for variation technique, 4 utterances (0.95%) for description technique, 23 utterances (5.45%) for substitution technique.

The researcher already found the mostly used translation technique is established equivalence technique, because that data used expression which has difficult meaning, established equivalence uses a term or expression that recognized by dictionary or language in use as an equivalent in TL, and the translator used this technique to find another expression in order to make the reader understand the message without changing the meaning.

The usage of these translation techniques will so much help the translator in facing with the problem of translation. Translation techniques will also help the translator to make the utterances in comic understandable and meaningful to the target readers.

5.2 Suggestions

The researcher would like to give some suggestions:

1. The readers who are interested in translation study and want to enrich their knowledge about the translation techniques in utterances of comic or some other field related to translation, they would comprehend the text before doing other research dealing with the translation.
2. Dian Nuswantoro University and especially for English Department students to use this thesis as a reference when they are dealing with a research related to the translation study, especially translation technique. Also this thesis gives them an image of how the applications of translation technique on comic looks like.

3. The next researcher, this thesis can be a reference for anyone who wants to do translation work on bilingual comics.
